The notion that "this is all a dream" is a most unlikely and unexpected one for the common (hu)man on the street, and a most misunderstood idea for many scholars in philosophy, psychology, etc., who presume to think that they have all the answers about the nature of existence (whether explicitly or implicitly), and reject outright this notion of the world as being a "dream," an idea which does not fit in with their current empirical experience or their mental models of reality.

This Is All A Dream - Enlightened Spirituality

Or, what if this is all a dream, and one day we will wake up in another world?" In a child-like way, I was referring to the possibility that the physical world is not the reality we presume it to be, and that the dream world is in fact the real world, or indeed another world that we are yet to discover.
